What's New In?

It seems that the Democratic Party is in disarray. Many Democrats aren't happy with how things are going and are ready to throw in the towel and join the Republican Party. However, some Democrats are still hanging in there hoping that something happens to turn things around. Former Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton appears to be one of these. She expressed her concerns in a Washington Post op-ed published on August 24. It seems that Clinton is worried about how Democratic Party leadership will approach 2020. “It’s too early to say definitively what will happen, but the writing is on the wall,” Clinton wrote. “It’s now or never. My family is all in. My friends and neighbors are all in. Democrats are all in.” Clinton acknowledged that she had a difficult time winning the nomination for president, and then her general election loss to President Donald Trump. But she says she can’t just sit back and “wish for the best.” “Instead of being wishful, let’s be proactive. My proposal this year is to win. Win the House, win the Senate, flip as many governors and state legislatures as we can, and win the presidency in 2020,” she wrote. Clinton cited Democratic Party policies and the issues that she thought were “designed to make it difficult for Americans who want to keep more of their own money and not have those big corporations control their lives,” as her motivation. “So I say, let’s start with the House, with the Senate. Let’s start with winning state legislative races,” she wrote.

Clinton encouraged Democrats to “talk to each other, instead of talking over each other.” “Get to know your new neighbors, and start knocking on doors. Show up at candidates’ town halls. Listen to them, talk to them. Ask them how they plan to fix our broken health care system. Ask them what their issues are. As voters in a few states show us, there is nothing that unites them like a big, blue wave,” she wrote. Clinton said that she hopes that Democrats will not back down and lose any battles this fall. “Not losing the house means not backing down in the fight for public education. It means respecting the limits on the campaign contributions of the biggest and most
